"Bleeding Kansas" is well stocked with tribulations. Lately she was short of harvest hands and now she is suffering for servant girls to cook the garnered crops.

"Mother Jones" calls the procession of sturdy and veteran spinsters who form her contingent "textile workers." Presumably that implies that they "carry the banner" and "work" the public.

Only such a man as General One Hundred Miles is fit to rule a Balkan principality. He's handy at moving off in sudden emergencies and has a good tough indurated seat not for a throne but for a saddle.

Millionaire Jas. R. Keene says that he is not particularly inconvenienced by the loss of $1,500,000. But he feels "annoyed." That is not unreasonable. Even editors might be annoyed by losses like that.

"Uttering false notes" was the charge on which a number of Italians were arrested as counterfeiters, in N. York last week. Yet if uttering false notes is a lawful cause for arrest most of the church choirs in this country had better take to the tall timber.

Instead of shooting the girl who jilted him and spoiling her shirt waist a philosophical California youth treated her to soda water and then she capitulated. Frothy effervescence wins in this world where the strenuous explosive fails to soothe discontent.

By its crusade of cold-blooded calculation against expensive funerals the N. Y. Journal reminds one of the Evansville orator who bemoaned the recklessness of Indiana administration in squandering $5,000 a year for plain blue spelling books when thousands of honest men in the state were actually suffering for whiskey.

Charged with the murder of one Paul M. Crooke in 1885, M. L. Halenbeck has served 17 years in the Iowa state prison. Now Crooke turns up alive. That he should not have heard of Halenbeck's trial seems almost incredible. No reparation can possibly atone for the seventeen years of infamy so unjustly inflicted upon an innocent man.

The Republicans have nominated an excellent ticket. There is not a weak candidate in the list and the convention was conducted in such a harmonious and fair manner that it seems impossible that there can be any ill will felt in any quarter against any part of the ticket. The Perrysburg delegation stood faithfully by their candidate and he has every reason to feel proud of the loyalty shown him by his home representatives.

Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, is distressed at the thought of getting fat. He is, it is said, approaching the 200-pound mark, and he is of the opinion that a man of his height cannot weigh 200 pounds without being fat. So it will be seen that he shares the unaccountable prejudice against flesh. "Without being fat"—well, suppose he is fat. We remember, says the Indianapolis News, that the great Caesar said, "Let me have men about me that are fat," and though the inference is perhaps not wholly complimentary, inasmuch as Caesar held that lean men thought too much, yet his testimonial must stand. Falstaff again identified fat with goodness, for he said, "There live not three good men unchanged in England; and one of them is fat and grows old." Dryden makes one of his characters say: "I am resolved to grow fat and look young at forty." It is true that Thomson thinks that poets should not be fat, for he remarks: "A bard here dwells more fat than hard beseeches." But Mr. Roosevelt, as far as the world knows, has no ambitions in the line of poetry. And Thomson's implication is that any one not a bard may be as fat as he pleases.

Horse Thief in Asylum.

Word has been received that Heckman Wentworth, alias Lawrence R. Wentworth, wanted here for horse stealing is in an insane asylum in West Virginia. Wentworth was chased all over Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia by officers, was once shot and has been in jeopardy several times. He was at last rounded up in Roanoke county, West Virginia, but retained an attorney who succeeded in convincing the court that the prisoner was insane, and so Wentworth was incarcerated in a lunatic asylum.

Death of S. P. Tolman.

On Monday afternoon, Aug. 3, 1903, Sewell P. Tolman, an old and highly respected citizen of our village passed away.

He was born in Keene, N. H., May 26, 1823, and had therefore passed the age of four score years.

In 1849 he was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Poore and to them were born two daughters.

Mr. Tolman came to Perrysburg in 1870 and engaged in business which he continued with success until ill health compelled him to withdraw from active business pursuits.

His wife and one daughter have preceded him to the unknown world and he leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. Davis, with many friends, to mourn his departure.

His funeral services were conducted at his late residence on Wednesday by Rev. Dumm and his remains placed at rest in Ft. Meigs cemetery.

Death of A Pioneer Citizen.

Washington G. Avery, one of Wood county's pioneer settlers, died at his home near Union Hill, in Plain township, at eleven o'clock Sunday morning, after a ten weeks' illness. His disease was dropsy. Mr. Avery first came to wood county in 1838, when a young man of 19 years, and resided in Plain until the time of his death. He was 84 years old.—Sentinel.

Casino Returns to Vaudeville.

Beginning next Sunday the policy of the Casino theater will be changed back to vaudeville, the engagement of the Casino Opera company closing on Saturday night. An especially strong vaudeville bill has been arranged for the coming week. The head liners will be Hayes and Healy, the well known comedians, in their very funny sketch, "The Ringmaster and the Rider." This team is one of the best in the business and the diminutive form of Healy in ballet skirts, is always a signal for uproarious applause and laughter. Miss Emile Gardner, the well known prima donna of the Casino Opera company, has been induced to remain one week longer and will present a vaudeville sketch, including a number of excellent musical selections, in which she has made such a hit in Toledo. The other features of the Casino bill will be Young and Brooks in "The Gainsborough Girl," Colby and Way, the "Ventriloquist Comedian" and the "Wax Doll." Murray K. Hill, the very clever monologue comedian; Berol and Berol, the "Rag Painters;" Warren and Howard in a comedy sketch entitled "The Golf Craze," which has been a headliner in all of the best vaudeville houses of the country.

Mrs. Mollie Allen, of South Fork, Ky., says she has prevented attacks of cholera morbus by taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when she felt an attack coming on. Such attacks are usually caused by indigestion and these Tablets are just what is needed to cleanse the stomach and ward off the approaching attack. Attacks of bilious colic may be prevented in the same way. For sale by Bowers & Comstock.

A BRILLIANT SPECTACLE.

Volcano Colima in Mexico is in Constant and Violent Eruption.

The volcano Colima, of Mexico, is displaying unusual activity. There are only short intervals between the eruptions, which have been practically continuous for three days.

The volcano presented a brilliant aspect the other night. A disturbance of unusual violence occurred at midnight at Tuxpan, a short distance east. The mountain air was so full of ashes that it was impossible to see more than 100 yards away. The wind was blowing a great volume of ashes west of the mountains.

Another serious outbreak of a most violent character occurred at three o'clock the next day. The waters of Lake Zapotitan give evidence of subterranean disturbances. The eruptions are unaccompanied by earthquakes.

The first thing you know it will be down deep in your lungs and the play will be over. Begin early with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop the cough.
